King changed his plans for the weeknd and remained in London.

Defection of Officers. What appears to be a reliable ac-Curragh comes in a Dublin dispatch. On Friday morning the officers received notification from the War Office that unless they were prepared for active service in Ulster, under certain censervice in Uister, under certain contingencies, they should send in their papers within twelve hours. As a result of this notification seventy out of seventy-six officers, including Lord rioimpatrick, resigned. General Sir Arthur Faget then communicated with the War Office and subsequently had a conference with the Curragh officers. General Paget told them that the War Office was willing to accept the resignations of General Gough, of the Third Cavalry Brigade, and the sonior officer of his staff, Major Kearsley, but that the others would be individually liable for their refugal to serve, which means they might be court-martialed. General Gough and Major saled. General Gough and Major searsley declined to accept the offer f special treatment, and said they could stand or fall by their brether flicers.

To Protect Property.

General Paget give assurances that the movemen of troops to Ulster was intended merely for the protection of sycrament property, and on this assurance the officers eventually agreed to proceed to Ulster for police duty, but resolutely refused to undertake hospities against the Ulster Levalists. This decision was forwarded in a special message to London, and General leagth and the colonels of the other regiments were summoned by the War office to proceed to London. It is understood that there are auditional procisional resignations from other regiments, and that the government has decided that the officers domiciled in lister will not be compelled to undertake active service against their will, but will be given the option of resignation from the army or prolonged leave of absence.

The regulation governing the officers' estimates is a follows. The regulation governing the officers' esignation, is as follows. An officer shall not be permitted to thre voluntarily unless it is deemed expedient by the army council."

to the government's action and inntions.

First the recent inovements of ecautionary character, as it is obous that the policy of disposing small dies of troops in Ulster would be eless from a strategic viewpoint, to intention simply was to protect the same and ammunition depots from a solible raid. As for the so-called val movements, they simply consistof the use of two small cruisers sonvey a detachment of troops to rough beliast. No further moveents of troops are contemplated.

Second the rumor that warrants had en issued for the arrest of the Ulster ders had not the slightest foundamus Doubtless Sir Edward Carson of his supporters honestly believe e rumor, but the government never staken and does not contemplate y such step.

Third, there seems to be a wideread impression abroad that the govnment contemplates instituting a neral inquisition fito the intentions officers in the event of their being ked to take up arms against Ulster, such action is intended. If only for The Underwood Democratic taring in the law is being challenged by Republicans for alleged failure to reduce the cost of living, and for not having promoted prosperity. The President wants pros-perity to answer these changes and to perity to answer these changes and to support the Democratic tariff theory. Prosperity for railroads is promised by railroad men should the increase in rates asked be authorized. For this reason friends of the President are hoping to get the decision from the commission in May.

With this prospect of further delay in the House, Democratic Senators who are energetically supporting President Wilson in the tolls fight expect to make another effort to have the Owen repeal bill taken up for consideration by the interoceanic Canals Committee. Senator O'Gorman, chairman of the committee, who is leading the opposition to the repeal, has said he would not call the committee together until Senator Crawford esturns from South Daketa, which will be late next week at the earliest. The Foreign Relations Committee of the Senate will have before it on Wednesday the resolutions the reduced by Senator Jones, of Washington, requesting the President for information as to what foreign rations ingten, requesting the President for information as to what foreign nations are asking for the repeal of the exemption. There is opposition in the committee for the resolution, and it may be reported adversely. In that case, Senator O'Gorman is expected to make a minority report. This will precipitate discussion in the Senate again, and furnish the opportunity for another preliminary skirmish on the important issue.
